HONGHONG, PRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1889 THE Sanitary Board has at last come to declaion on the yexed question of the dis posal of the city refuse, if that can be call ed a decision which recommends a scheme that not one of the members fully endorses. The President, Mr Humphreys and Dr Cantlie would have preferred to send the rubbish out to sea by a well-appointed sertrar General considered the Mongkok phreys to advocate that nothing should he earth-burial scheme the best and most eco. done to check this cause of pollution until nomical. Mr Francis remained true to the burning process, which the Board had first recommended. Mr Ede, who was at first'a burner, seems to have been gradually persuaded that the cost and difficulties connected with destructors or cinerators were so great as to render this scheme impracticable, and he went over to the side of the dumpers or earth-buriers. General Gordon, Dr Ho Kai and le grand silencieux, Mr Wong Shing, were free lances, and they were apparently the only persons who accepted the compromise without misgivings. Not one member of the Board supported it enthusiastically, and the result was that at the meeting on Wednesday every one had a great deal to say against his neighbours proposals, and little information to give as to how the composite scheme would work in practice. In fact, it was only with a wrench that the Board got itself to finally accept the Committee's proposal. At the very last moment, even the Chairman was inclined to draw back, being under the impression that something might come out of the offer of the Chinese contractor, Yan Sui Wan, who proposed to land the refuse on some waste depurative and disinfectant; readily allay place of land near the Chinese frontier; there remove the brick-bata and hard portions, and allow the soft portions to remain valent in het climates, and are strongly reuntil it was serviceable as manure. We connot see what attraction this offer had in the eyes of the Surveyor General, for if Mr McCallum's earth-burial was likely to be a nuisance, this assorting of the rubbish and preserving it till it was turned into manure, would likely be a much greater nuisance to the inhabitants of the Kowloon peninsula, The scheme that has been adopted by the TRANSPARENT, guaranteed to contain 20% Board has this to recommend it that it can be tried for six or twelve months. without much expense, and if it is found ensuitable can easily be abandoned in fayour of some other method of disposal A contract is to be made with the scavenging contractor or some person of that sort to remove the refuse from the Colony and dump it somewhere not less than one mile distant. We suppose the contract will be so drawn up as to permit of the authorities speedily terminating it if they find that the rubbish is being dumped on places whence it is washed by the scour back into the harbour. It would have been a very stupid thing for the Board to adopt any of the costly schemes before giving a fair trial to the less costly. It was mainly on the ground of the esse and cheapness with which an experiment might be made that we suggested the Mongkok scheme should be tried. before being condemned. The property owners in the vicinity, however, are so alarmed at the danger to which they conceive the residents in the Peninsula will be expused that the Board, without a definite statement to the contrary by the medical members, could not dare to adopt it.

mentable state of affairs that raised such an outery this year from recurring after the next rainy season has set in. He does not altogether take blame to his department for what happened last May-no official could be expected to do that - but he says he discovered that, in addition to red earth deposited on Crown lauds, there were very large deposits on private lands. In other and less ambiguous words, he says My department may have been a big sinner, but the owners of private land wore equally if not more to blame for what happened. It is not worth while now quarrelling over the apportionment of the blame. What has to bu done is to prevent the pollution of the. water in future. Of course it is impossible to keep the water perfectly pure the whole year round. After the heavy rains that PLEASE OFSERVE. - Each Tablet bears our fall during the sum nor months the water will slways be coloured a little by the earth which the torrents have cut up. But, if ordinary care is taken to present accumulations of loose earth in the catchment area, the water a day or two after the heavy rain should become comparatively pure. In former years, this has been the case, but in May this year the water remained very dirty after a fortnight a dry weather, and it was this fact more than anything else that alarmed residents. Two causes were attributed for the abnormal pollution. The tampering with the mud in the reservoir at the beginning On the 26th September, at Belilios Ter- of the year and the washing down of mud from the oatchment area. About the first cause the officials concerned At the Government Civil Hospital, on the have endeavoured to say as little as possible. It was a big mistake to begin work which, as might have been patent to everybody, could not be completed before the commencement of the rainy season. But, although the Surveyor General may be excused for not referring to this blunder on the part of his predecessor, he might have given the public some information as to when the filter-beds would be ready. A question with regard to them was put some months ago, to which there was given the curt and somewhat importment reply that when the plans and estimates were finished the work would be begun. Are these plans and estimates any nearer completion today than they were in the month of June? While we are waiting for these filter-beds vice of steam hopper barges, but the ex. it is of course right and proper that steps pense connected with this scheme was should be taken to prevent the pollution likely to be so great that they did not press | caused by the tipping of laud on private pro-Transfer Books of the Union Insurance it. pollution has actually begun. What he (Communion) Service in the Peak Church deprecated was taking proceedings against on Sunday, at & a.m. owners without sufficient warning. The Public Health Act is, we know, a very ifficult Ordinance to interpret. Many of its clauses are so fearfully and wonderfully constructed that it is impossible to may what they mean. Still we think with the Acting Registrar General that the Board has (theoretically at least) power to stop the pollution of the Pukfulam water by the cutting of earth on private lands. The ordinance defines a nuisance to include any water course, well, tank, pool, canal, conduit, or cistern, the water of which; Board is empowered, when satisfied of the existence of a pulsance, to serve a notice on the person by whose act, default or sufferance the nuisance srises or continues.'. The Board would have to prove that the water in the reservoir was so tainted or so un wholesome as to be injurious and also that the tipping complained of caused the nuisance. This might not always be an casy Crown. Until such time, then, as a Bill can be passed to define more accurately the powers of the Board, it would be well not to rush too recklessly into prosecutions. The warning given to private owners will, it is to be hoped, lead them to prevent any causes of pollution arising on their lands. If it has not this desired effect the Board, in the interests of the public, must prosecute the parties, and if its powers are insufficient, the sooner the Government extends them the better. But while pri vate owners are brought up to the scratch for their share of the pollution, the public expects that the authorities will do their share of the work in keeping the water pure, for the Colony must be saved from a breakdown in the water supply such as occurred this year.

THE concert given by Signor Cattaneo's pupils in the hall of the Lucitano Club yesterday evening, for the benefit of the orphans at the Italian Convent, was a well patronised and altogether very successful entertainment. If the enthusiastic teacher Kobe, Shanghai and Hongkong on the and his pupils do not always command absolute and unqualified success they never fail to deserve it. Their performances loveriably give evidence of careful and intelligent study and assiduous practice, and indications of this were very canspictions in the work they accomplished on this occasion. The programme was not only a lengthy one but was made up almost entirely of selections from grand opera, and such selections, too, as make pretty heavy demands on the executants. The vocalists who appeared have all, we believe, been heard before in this hall on similar occasions, but perhaps never to better advantage than last night, when solos and concerted numbers alike were rendered in a way that left very little fault to be found, Among the latter items, the quartette from Rigoletto, in which the parts were taken by EDMUND Payne, a comp. on tramp, ap.
